

Department of Languages and Communication

Purpose and Goals

The diverse faculty and staff of the Department of Languages and Communication work diligently to maintain a learning environment that enhances educational growth and professional opportunities for our students. The programs offer students a liberal arts education emphasizing media studies and production, literary studies, advanced research and writing skills, and the acquisition of language and communication skills in English, Spanish, Arabic, and Chinese.

The objective of the department is to prepare students for a broad range of careers in teaching, professional and creative writing, interpersonal communication and public relations, media production, and other professions that require advanced skills in communication, critical thinking, and creative problem-solving. Historically, our primary task has been to provide Prairie View A&M University students with advanced verbal and written skills, technical media knowledge, preparation for graduate and professional schools, and career placement. The Department of Languages and Communication continues this mission with recent highlights that include a fully renovated digital television studio equipped with the latest in production technology; PC and Macintosh computer laboratories with cutting-edge software programs for media creation; a media and language performance laboratory; and courses in global languages and culture.

Academic Standards

Students must earn a minimum grade of a "C" in all classes taken in their major disciplines and a minimum grade of a "C" in all classes taken in their minor disciplines (if applicable).

Foreign Languages

Serving a diverse ethnic and socioeconomic population, the Foreign Languages faculty is dedicated to excellence in teaching, research, and service. We are committed to helping our students become global citizens through the exciting path of multi-literacy and multilingualism.

Basic Language Program

In the basic language program (lower-level foreign language classes), we prepare students to function at professional levels in Spanish (<https://catalog.pvamu.edu/universitycourses/span/>), Chinese (<https://catalog.pvamu.edu/universitycourses/chin/>), and Arabic (<https://catalog.pvamu.edu/universitycourses/arab/>). These classes are the foundation of foreign language learning, fulfill college foreign language requirements, and also serve as course electives. We educate our students to not only do well in all levels of their chosen language but also to be able to procure international certifications of their linguistic abilities.

Spanish Minor

In addition to the basic language program, the Foreign Languages Program also offers a minor in Spanish (<https://catalog.pvamu.edu/academicprogramsanddegreeplans/marvindandjunesamuelbrailsfordcollegeofartsandsciences/languagescommunication/#minorplanstext>). The Spanish minor includes coursework that is geared toward advanced language acquisition as well as the study of the cultures of the Hispanic diaspora. Within a state and region that is increasingly bilingual, the addition of a Spanish minor to any student's primary course of study gives them a significant and tangible advantage within a workforce that must have the intercultural and linguistic abilities to effectively communicate with monolingual Spanish speakers.

Study Abroad

Study abroad is a great way to enhance and accelerate the learning of a foreign language. We promote not only seeking abroad opportunities in the languages we offer but also in languages not offered at the university. Our faculty are ready to help you attain your language learning goals no matter the language and can help you find the right opportunity if you are interested in studying a critical language (as defined by the US Department of State). There are many scholarship opportunities to study abroad as well as to study intensely during the summer in the US. Reach out to your foreign language professor and to the Office of International Programs (<https://www.pvamu.edu/internationalprograms/>) to learn more.

More About Foreign Languages

Our continued dedication to student success is also expressed in adopting free and very low-cost Open Educational Resources (OER) texts for all BLP (1000-2000 level) classes starting in the Spring of 2020. OERs have been proven to save student bodies millions of dollars as well as remove barriers to learning. We remain dedicated to this movement and supportive of this A&M System initiative with our enthusiastic adoption of these resources in our classes.

The Foreign Languages Program is committed to quality research in the areas of literature, pedagogy, and linguistics. Our faculty and staff are avid publishers, grant writers, and presenters in their fields. We believe in the pertinent and well-guided application of technology to language instruction and learning through the use of a variety of apps, websites, and digital humanities projects in our classroom. Finally, we are committed to service in our larger department, the college, the university, and our greater Houston Metropolitan community.
