

Graduate

The Master's degree in Health is primarily for those students who are interested in school health education or working in various health care settings such as hospitals, public and private health and education agencies, or health promotion programs. An internship is required.

Program	Degree Offered
Health	MS, MED